FAQ

What is Wood Without Worry?

Wood Without Worry refers to aluminium woodgrain battens that offer a premium timber look with minimal maintenance. Compared to timber, aluminium woodgrain is stronger, more durable, fade-resistant, and only requires the occasional soapy water wash down.

How is it made?

The aluminium batten is powder coated in a light colour matching the woodgrain tone and then wrapped in the woodgrain image film. The batten is baked to transfer the woodgrain image onto it. As the batten cools, the woodgrain pattern penetrates the base powder coat, locking permanently into the coating.

What about graffiti and scratching?

Wood Without Worry is an anti-graffiti coating, which means surface scratches can be polished out and marker pen can be removed with a suitable cleaner. Deeper scratches can be remedied using colour-matched touch up paint. Spare battens are also readily available direct from the factory.

Does Wood Without Worry get hot?

No, on the contrary, all aluminium battens actually stay quite cool because they are hollow extrusions that respond quickly to cooling from wind. Wood Without Worry battens, with the exception of Wenge, generally are cooler than the surrounding temperature in the summer months. It is the ideal batten choice for hot summers and locations where the urban island heat effect is a concern.

What products offer Wood Without Worry?
